Three Chairs Dance

Calvin Campbell

Here is a good party game. Three chairs are set side by side and the dancers line up in two lines. It can be mixed gender lines or the men can be in one line and the ladies in the other. Three people sit on the three chairs. A woman in the center with a man on either side or a man in the center with a woman on either side. Some object is given to the center person. This could be a hat or a bouquet or a piece of fruit or something else.

Music is put on and the center person must choose one of the end people and hand them the object. Then the center person dances down the center between the lines with the other person.

At the head of the set, the person with the object takes the middle seat and two people of the opposite sex sit down in the end chairs.

I have a YouTube video of this dance. Click here. In this version, the lines are mixed in gender.